Janet Hartin : Fabjob Guide to Become a Landscape Company Owner [With CD-ROM] before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Fabjob Guide to Become a Landscape Company Owner [With CD-ROM]:

2 of 3 people found the following review helpful. Best book on the market for anyone wanting to become a landscaperBy landscapeII have read 3 similar books and this one is the best. I bought the first online edition 5 years ago before it was updated as a hardcover as well as CD. If it weren't for this book, I'd still be behind a desk pushing paper. I always wanted to own my own landscape company but didn't want to take the plunge. Follow the advice in this book and you'll be up and at 'em within a year or two. I'm clearing about $60,000 now and expanding next year. The best thing about this book is that it covers what you'll need to know to open a business as well as lots of really good horticulture information. There are sample forms and a good discussion on how to get some experience under your belt and lots of free help from Univ. extension services.

Imagine having a high paying job that lets you spend time outdoors and use your creativity to create beautiful landscapes. In The FabJob Guide to Become a Landscape Company Owner you will discover - How to provide professional landscaping services, how to plant and provide ongoing maintenance for grass, trees and bedding plants - How to start a landscaping business, including how to set your prices and manage employees - Equipment and tools you will need for your business, where to find them, and how to save money on them - How to get residential and commercial clients - Plus information about eco-landscaping to create environmentally friendly landscapes. About the Author Janet Hartin has had a love for plants and nature as far back as she can remember. Her early enthusiasm was spawned by family vacations to nearly every national park in the United States by the time she was 16. Her first paid horticulture job was selling nursery and bedding plants at a Midwest retail nursery, followed by a move to Hilo, Hawaii where she worked in the anthurium industry. After a year in paradise she moved to Minnesota where she obtained B.S. and M.S. degrees from the University of Minnesota. During college, Janet worked in the horticulture industry in both the public and private landscape sectors. Keeping in touch with real-world problems, opportunities and advancements in the world of horticulture, coupled with her education, helped land Janet her dream job in 1984 as a horticulturist with the University of California Cooperative Extension, a position she still holds. Her position allows her to work directly with the landscape industry, keeping people at all stages of their careers abreast of the latest research-based information on plant varieties, irrigation and pest management techniques, and tree, shrub, and turf care. She has published more than 100 articles, fact sheets, technical publications and books on horticulture topics, and presented hundreds of talks to industry and professional societal groups, both nationally and internationally.
