The book is thorough and includes photos, plans, diagrams, and descriptions of the architect's home designs through the years, including a period of modernism. If you are an architect or designer contemplating to work in the Pueblo, Territorial, or related style, this is a chance to learn from one of the masters. The chapter on the McCormick House is especially well illustrated. A rare treat.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Beautiful book with lots of nice pictures.By DrJakeBeautiful book with lots of nice pictures.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Excellent inclusion of plans and detailsBy BruceThis is a very well illustrated book with photographs, plans and details. The work includes a few examples of 1940's mid-century design, but is mostly work done in a southwestern style.

A colorful exploration of the life and work of Santa Fe architect John Gaw Meem. Long recognized for his landmark public buildings in Santa Fe, Albuquerque, and Colorado Springs, John Gaw Meem's name is synonymous with Santa Fe style. A book filled with dazzling photographs of the southwest landscape and Meem's signature houses, Facing Southwest explores Meem's signature design elements and numerous examples of his unique Spanish- and Pueblo-influenced residences. 176 color and 100 black and white photographs

[A] sophisticated and well-written book that will appeal to historians of American modernism and casual aficionados of the southwestern style. - Victoria Solan, University of Chicago, Journal of the Society of Architectural Historians
