Paul Bangay : Garden at Stonefields before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Garden at Stonefields:

A Stunning Garden Book by an Important Designer, and PhotographerBy True ReaderI did not buy this book from this site, I bought it from my local bookstore, but only because it wasn't available from at the time. I own every book Paul Bangay has published and I adore them all. I spend many an afternoon re-reading them all and they look so beautiful too, the photography is sublime. I chose to review this one because it didn't have any reviews yet while some of the others did, and they all deserve 5 stars. I have noticed that the same photographer, Simon Griffiths, is used for each book so congratulations must go to him too. I wanted to post this review because it is a chance to express just how gorgeous all Mr Bangay's books are, not just this one. Anyone who loves gardens will love these books, and like all good books they tell a story. The Garden at Stonefields outlines all the dramas and details of establishing a large garden, home, and productive country property. It is another wonderful book by Paul Bangay and Simon Griffiths and I believe that anyone who is even half interested in gardens and their design should have these on their bookshelves, or coffee table because they are so beautiful you will want them on display.

This is celebrated landscape designer Paul Bangay's inspirational story of creating Stonefields, one of Australia's most beautiful country gardens. The Garden at Stonefields reveals the triumphs and trials of designing and building this extraordinary house and garden Paul's most challenging and personal project yet. Photographed by Paul's long-time collaborator Simon Griffiths, the stunning photos reveal the evolution of the site from conception to completion, and capture the unique beauty of each area of the garden. The book also features extracts from Paul's personal diary, an intimate and compelling account of dealing with drought, bushfires, and the threat of mining in contemporary rural Australia.

About the Author Paul Bangay is one of Australia's most high-profile landscape designers. He is a sought-after guest on gardening and lifestyle television programs, and his work spans private and public commissions throughout Australia, Europe, New Zealand, and North America. Simon Griffiths is a leading photographer of gardens, interiors, and food, and he has worked closely with Paul Bangay on all his books. Simon has collaborated on a number of food and travel books, including It Tastes Better, Kylie Kwong's My China, and Shack.
