A Garden of DelightsBy VBookclubThe Garden Letters is a delightful read, even for those of us who have brown thumbs to the elbows. It speaks to everyone with a love of growing things. With the different challenges of fecund soil, abundance of sunshine and rain and beating winds and cruel winters. Most of all it speaks of a deep and abiding friendship. This was a choice of my book club that I would not have ordinarily read, I am happy and grateful that is was chosen.

When Elspeth Bradbury moved from rural New Brunswick to West Vancouver she initiated a lively correspondence with her friend and former neighbor, Judy Maddocks. This charming collection of letters reveals as much about the seasons in a woman's life as it does the growing cycles of a garden.
