Monty Don : Gardening Mad before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Gardening Mad:

0 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Four Stars By Heather Gladney various writings from his columns in the paper. Varied moods, tone.

Humorous, charmingly idiosyncratic, full of trenchant observations and great tips, Monty Don entertains and educates the armchair gardener and the passionate life-long gardener alike. His essays are complimented by the exquisite photographs of Fleur Olby, which capture the sensuality of plants and flowers with an unusually striking grace. Composed around the calendar year, this visually stunning work covers a great melange of subjects, including "Valentine Roses," "Novice Gardening," "Apples," "RED!," "New Age Gardening," "Christmas Trees," and "Neighbors." Monty Don writes about gardening as an experience, rather than a particular science, integrating hard work, vitality, and esprit in an enthusiastic examination of the gardening life.

On the other side of the Atlantic, the "London Observer" gardening columnist Monty Don collected 48 of his insightful, entertaining columns for "Gardening Mad." No matter which essay you choose to read, a nugget of knowledge and a grin at his pithy wit are sure to be your reward. -- Gardening KnowHow magazine, December 1998
About the Author Monty Don writes a weekly gardening column for the "London Observer." He has had various occupations over the years but gardening and writing have always been at the center of his "real life." He and his family live in Herefordshire, England.
